

GP Continuing Professional Development

Minimally invasive options in women's health

New surgical and image-guided treatments for common gynaecological conditions

It's easy to register

standrewsipswich.com.au

Thursday 5 November 2026

RSVP Monday 2 November

Sasso Italiano

4/148 Logan Road

Woolloongabba, QLD, 4102

Pip McEniery – GPLO

mcenieryp@ramsayhealth.com.au or 0409 225 424

Join Dr Rachel Green, Obstetrician and Gynaecologist, and Dr Gregory Tarr, Interventional Radiologist, for a practical GP update on contemporary minimally invasive treatment pathways in women's health.

Dr Rachel Green – vNOTES: a new approach to minimally invasive gynaecological surgery

Dr Green will explain how vaginal natural orifice transluminal endoscopic surgery (vNOTES) allows hysterectomy and adnexal surgery without visible abdominal scars, often with less postoperative pain and same-day discharge. She will cover common indications, patient selection, referral pathways and where vNOTES fits alongside laparoscopic surgery.

Dr Gregory Tarr – Interventional Radiology in women's health

Dr Tarr will explain how embolisation treats these conditions through a small skin puncture rather than a surgical incision, typically as a day procedure or a single overnight stay. He will cover useful initial investigations, patient selection, referral pathways and where embolisation fits alongside medical and surgical management.

PROGRAM

6.00pm Registration and dinner

6.30pm Presentation and discussions

9.00pm Evaluation and close

Hours: 2RP Hours

Proudly sponsored by

LET'S TAKE HEALTHCARE FURTHER, TOGETHER

Medtronic 75 years

LEARNING OUTCOMES

- Recognise women with benign gynaecological conditions or pelvic venous disorders who may benefit from a minimally invasive approach
- Arrange useful initial investigations and choose an appropriate referral pathway
- Understand where vNOTES and embolisation sit alongside medical and conventional surgical management

Email if you wish to be removed from our mailing list

standrewsipswich.com.au

St Andrew's Ipswich Private Hospital
Part of Ramsay Health Care